THE following "Notices" have no pretension to be of any general or public interest. Occasionally some of the peculiar and striking customs and manners of the age may crop up, as at pp. 17, 21, 30, 71, 74; but no attempt has been made to multiply these incidents.

These Notes are mainly the result of collections made, at leisure hours, for a considerable period of time by some friends of the Editor, who, like himself, take an interest in the surname of Shand; and he doubts not to others, who may be similarly situated, these pages will not be unwelcome.

Any corrections or additional information forwarded to the Editor will be very acceptable. His distance from the leading sources of information will plead his apology for mistakes. He hopes a kindly eye will be thrown upon this little collection by those who, like himself, have a love for "the olden time."

S H A N D .

As is the case with most other ancient proper names, the surname Shand has been spelt differently, at different times.* In the older writings it appears under the form of SCHAWAND, SCHAAND, SCHANDE, SCHAND, and SHAN. The Latin form was, latterly at least, Schandeus (Fasti Abredonenses); but, as we shall see by and by, it has been maintained, though probably on insufficient evidence, that De Campo was the Latin equivalent in earlier times. Originally it would appear that the surname was entirely confined to the north-eastern counties of Scotland, particularly Aberdeenshire, and it is believed that, widely spread as it now is throughout the different parts of the Empire, although the name has never been particularly numerous, there is not a family of Shands which cannot easily connect itself directly with the part of Scotland to which we have just referred.

There can, therefore, we apprehend, be little doubt that all the families of this name are derived from one common stock, and, judging from the frequency of the name, and the earliest authentic notices in older times, its original habitat seems to have been in the district comprising the parishes of Turriff, Forgue, Drumblade, Auchterless, Culsamond, Fyvie, King Edward (Kinedart), Gamery, and adjacent localities.

* In the Fasti Abredonenses another old name of the district, Strachan, is spelt in no less than twenty-two different ways.

In the year 1539, Robert Schand was co-owner of the lands of Udoch, (now Idoch) in the said parish of Turriff, along with Forbes of Brux and Con of Auchry.—Spalding Club Antiq., ii. 358. In the same parish the lands of Shand's Cross are situated, but so far as we are aware the precise origin of this name has not been preserved. In the middle ages, as is well known, crosses were set up to mark the limits and boundaries of girths, jurisdictions, and franchises; the marches of lands, and the spots where any incident had happened, such as seemed worthy of commemoration or remembrance, in the more simple and credulous manners of the day.

On the 16th January, 1460, the Bishop of Aberdeen, Thomas Spens, granted a precept for the institution of Mr. Gilbert Hay as Prebendary of Turriff in the Cathedral, an office then vacant by the death of Master John de Campo, the last incumbent.—Ibid., p. 344. It has been suggested that the name of Shand's Cross may be connected with this ecclesiastic, in whose name of De Campo or De Campis some antiquarians have recognised the older form of Shand, passing through the changes of Deschamps, Dechamp, and Champ, pronounced Shan, which has always been the local pronunciation of the name, all these names being met with in the older records of that part of Scotland. This origin of the surname has been advocated with considerable plausibility by contributors to Notes and Queries, and the local sound of the name which, as we have seen, rejects the final d, may be thought to support the theory. But, till further evidence is produced, we think the verdict ought, in the language of the country itself, to be "Not proven." We are the more inclined to arrive at this conclusion from the fact that the word "Schand" is given by Dr. Jamieson in his Dictionary of the Scottish Language as the form of an adjective of Teutonic origin, signifying "elegant, bright," &c. It is well known to every archæologist, that very many surnames have had their sources in the personal traits and characteristics of individuals, and we confess that it appears to us that we have here a very natural and probable origin of the name. There seems little doubt that this attributive still lingers in our ordinary language in such words as Shandwick, beautiful bay, and a few others.*

In the Poll Book of Aberdeenshire of the year 1696, we find the name well represented in the same part of the country, and this has ever since continued down to our own time.

As might naturally be looked for, the attractions of commerce and town life caused persons of this name, like other individuals, to gravitate towards the towns on the coast. Accordingly, in the records of the city of Aberdeen, and the towns of Banff, Fraserburgh, Peterhead, and others similarly situated, we find many persons of the surname engaged in commerce, and filling municipal and public offices of every description, for centuries past. Notices of many of these Worthies will be given in the sequel.

It is believed that the well-known and eminent Antiquary, the late George Chalmers of London, had prepared a pedigree of the Shands, but the result of his inquiry cannot now be found, although diligent search has been made for it, both at home and in India, where it is understood some of the Shands, with whom he was connected by blood, have been for some time resident. This is much to be regretted, for there are very few persons so well qualified as the author of "Caledonia" to collect and put together the archæological notices of a Scottish family. The late Mr. John Shand and Mr. William Shand, the owners of the beautiful estates of The Burn and Arnhall in the county of Kincardine,

* It has been stated that "Shan" or "Shand" is the cant or slang word for bad money. This is a mistake. The word is "Sheen." See Slang Dictionary, 1874, sub voce. There is a Shanville in the parish of Crathie, a Shandstone in the parish of Boharm, and a Shandbothy in Lanarkshire.

were, we believe, nearly connected, by the mother's side, with George Chalmers, and from this circumstance it is probable that his interest in the name of Shand took its origin. We are not without hope that his Account of the surname may yet be discovered.

ARMORIAL BEARINGS.

IN the well-known English work, Gwillim's Heraldry, sixth edition, London, folio, 1724, p. 35, we find mention made of the family of "Shan of that Ilk," with the fine and simple arms, Azure, a bend argent. Unfortunately no authority which can be traced is given for this statement, and the arms in question have long been the inheritance of another ancient Aberdeenshire family.

It is true that in the extensive MS. collections of the late Mr. Alexander Deuchar, Genealogist and Seal Engraver in Edinburgh, which were disposed of by public auction some thirty years ago, or more, and to which the compilers of these notes have been largely indebted, the surnames of Shand and Sands are treated as identical; and there does appear to have been a family of Sands, who were styled "de Eodem," in the fifteenth century. But it would appear to be a mistake to connect the two names in this way. The name Sands is found in a totally different part of Scotland, viz., in and about the town of Culross, on the Firth of Forth, and in Perthshire, while, as we have seen, that of Shand was originally confined to the north east of Scotland. The arms of the two names are also entirely different.

It is a somewhat remarkable circumstance that in the records of the office of the Lord Lyon in Edinburgh, several coats of arms, in no respect resembling each other, are assigned to the name of Shand. Which of these may be the oldest in date it is not easy to determine, as there is no precise date, so far as we can discover, attached to any of them, but we may begin with the escutcheon given in Workman's MS. which dates, we believe, from about the year 1570, additions having been made to it during the period from 1610 to 1620. These bearings are, Vert, on a pack of wool, or cushion, a camel's head and neck argent, in chief two crescents of the last. These arms would appear to point to some connection, commercial or other, with the East, but no account of their origin, or trace of any person or persons who may have used these or similar armorial ensigns has been preserved.

The next coat of arms appropriated to the name of Shand, in the registers of the Lyon office, is a very striking and beautiful escutcheon, viz. Azure, in the Sun, the Virgin Mary with the Babe, all proper. To the entry is subjoined the following note, "see Randle Holme's Book, ii. c. 1, fig. 45, for the manner of drawing." It appears, as we shall see by and by, that in the times before the Reformation there were several dignified ecclesiastics in the diocese of Aberdeen of the name of Schand. This fact, taken in connection with the peculiar nature of these armorial bearings themselves, led us at one time to think that they might have been used by some of those individuals. We know that the great events of our faith have been often prominently depicted by heralds in all the countries of Europe, and assigned and appropriated to Bishops and other clerics in the different grades of their sees, offices, and jurisdictions. But, on further enquiry, we are satisfied that this is really French heraldry, and that these bearings are the arms of the family of Chandos or Shandos, which, as is well known, produced several distinguished captains in the course of the long wars between the English and the French. *

In 1485, as Lord Bacon tells us in his History of King Henry VII., that king created "the Lord Chandos of Britain (Brittany) Earl of Bath," and this is no doubt the Philibert de Shaunde, who figures in the books of the Extinct Peerage as "Earl of Bath" of those times.—(See Dugdale's Baronage, ii. 288.) How the arms of this family came to be assigned in Scotland to the name of Shand, we cannot explain. Possibly the similarity of the name may have contributed to this conclusion. At all events, we are not aware of any more definite relation having ever existed, or been supposed to exist, between the two surnames.

Another coat of arms is also designated as belonging to the name of Shand, in the rolls of the Lyon office. It is as follows: "Gules, a fleur de lis, between three crescents argent." Of the origin and history or actual use of this

* The following amusing anecdote is from Froissart:—Whilst the Cardinal de Perigord was riding from one army to the other, on the day before the battle of Poitiers, endeavouring to make peace, some knights of either party rode forth, skirting their enemy's army to examine its disposition. It chanced that day Sir John Chandos had rode out near one of the wings of the French army, and Lord John de Clermont, one of the king's marshals, had done the same, to view the English. As each knight was returning to his quarters, they met. They both had the same device upon the surcoats which they wore over their other clothes; it was a Virgin Mary embroidered on a field azure, or, encompassed with the rays of the sun, argent. On seeing this, Lord Clermont said, "Chandos, how long is it since you have taken upon you to wear my arms." "It is you who have mine," replied Chandos; "for it is as much mine as yours." "I deny that," said the Lord of Clermont; "and, were it not for the truce between us, I would soon show you that you have no right to wear it." "Ha!" answered Sir John Chandos, "you will find me to-morrow in the field, ready prepared to defend, and to prove by force of arms, that it is as much mine as yours."

The Lord of Clermont replied: "These are the boastings of you English, who can invent nothing new, but take for your own whatever you see handsome belonging to others." With that they parted, without more words, and each returned to his own army.—Froissart's Chronicles, i. ch. 159, p. 424.

blazon by any individual or family, we have been able to learn nothing.

As to the arms actually borne by different existing families of this name, so far as we have been able to discover, they are those of the Schands or Shands of Craig (now Caskieben) in the parish of Dyce and county of Aberdeen, with distinctive differences. The family of Craig rose to opulence in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. We find their arms matriculated in the books of the Lord Lyon, about the middle of the sixteenth century. They appear on their monuments and tombstones, particularly in the East Church, as it is now called, in the city of Aberdeen, the ancient Quire of the church of St. Nicholas, which was long celebrated in ante-Reformation times as being one of the largest and most magnificent parish churches in Scotland. These armorial bearings are thus recorded in the Lyon Registers: Azure, a boar's head coupéd argent, on a chief of the second, three mullets gules. Crest, a dove volant above the waters holding ane braunch of olive in her beek, proper. Motto, Virtute Duce, Comite Fortuna. Thomas Shand, who subscribed himself "of Bendach," part of the Barony of Craig, as we shall see below, was descended from an ancient and wealthy family which, for generations, had intermarried with leading families both in the town and county. We learn, from some notices of St. Nicholas' Church, preserved in the MSS. of the late Mr. James Logan, author of The Scottish Gael, (Advocates' Library, Aberdeen) made early in this century, that various memorials of this family and its connections were to be met with in the carvings of the old black oak panelling of the pews. But all those ornaments have unfortunately disappeared. The church was rebuilt some forty years ago, at a period when the revival of good taste and the appreciation of our native antiquities, now so happily characteristic of our Ediles, had scarcely dawned among us.

As we have already said, this coat of arms appears to be the only one in use by the families of the surname. In the records of the Lyon office, we find it assigned to the ancestors of various branches of the name, with some distinctive difference usually marking the maternal descent of the grantee. Thus the Shands of the Burn and Arnhall have these arms in the first and third quarter, with those of Chalmers in the second and fourth. Sir C. F. Shand, Chief Justice of Mauritius, and his brother, the Rev. Geo. Shand, Rector of Heydon, Norfolk, the only surviving children of the late Rev. James Shand, of Marykirk, have the arms of Craig, with a border ermine, and three escutcheons gules, shewing their maternal descent, some generations back, from the Hays. The Shands of Craigellie have also similar arms. It appears from the Lyon office records that others of the name in Aberdeenshire have had the same cognizance allotted to them, with the addition of a bordure or, its upper part suppressed by the chief, with the same crest, but the motto shortened to Virtute Duce.

It has been conjectured that these armorial bearings, particularly the shield azure, with the Boar's Head coupé argent, mark the connection of the Shands with the leading Aberdeenshire family of Gordon, in early times. It is well known that that powerful and numerous surname of old carried only one Boar's Head coupé argent, in a field azure, instead of three boars' heads, as has been the bearing of the whole name for centuries. It may be readily surmised that it is not likely that such a shield as that appropriated to the Shands, could, in Aberdeenshire, have been assigned to and used by them, without some connection of feudal dependency, intermarriage, or otherwise. We shall see by and by that the Shands are found intermarrying with many of the leading families of the district; but, so far as we are aware, no special relations with any of the numerous branches of the Gordons have been noted. The fact, however, may be here deemed worthy of being set down, that the Gordons of Pitlurg, an ancient and distinguished branch of the surname, coming off the main stem, before the Seton marriage, which took place early in the fifteenth century, carry as their crest, a dove, with the olive leaf in her bill. It may also be thought noteworthy that there is a tradition among some of the Shands, that, like the Bairds, the ancestors of the family of Auchmedden and others, the Shands came originally from the South to Aberdeenshire, with the Gordons, in the fourteenth century. But, unfortunately for the truth of this tradition, we know nothing to corroborate it, except it may be the striking similarity of their arms. One thing however is clear, that in the politics of the day, and the excited burgher and county factions of the times, the Schands were devoted partizans of the Menzieses. In 1588, Alexander Schand died, in the highly confidential position of secretary to Gilbert Menzies, the Provost of Aberdeen.—Parochial Records. And we learn from the same source that the Schands intermarried with the Menzieses, and that on their festive occasions;—christenings and the like, the witnesses were often of the Menzies family and their friends. It is well known that the Menzieses followed the Gordons in their devotion to the Royalist, and what may be called the aristocratic party, in the long course of our national and domestic history of the sixteenth and following centuries. There is ample evidence in the following pages that the leading citizens of the name of Shand continued faithful to these principles to the last. Hence, possibly, and from the fact that we find the Schands often holding land under the Gordons, the armorial bearings of the former may have been derived.

It is not unlikely that the three mullets were derived from the ancient Aberdeenshire family of Blackhall of that Ilk, or of Reid of Pitfoddells. With both we find that the Shands were closely allied by marriage. The arms of the former family were, Gules, a dexter hand couped, fessways, and thereupon a hooded hawk perched or, on a chief argent, three mullets of the first. The Reids gave two coats, quarterly, first and third, Argent, a chevron azure, betwixt two mullets and a cross crosslet fitché gules: second and fourth, Stewart. After what has been already said on the subject, it may be considered a mere accidental circumstance that Robert de Shandos, temp. Henry III., carried stars.—Boutell's Heraldry, 1863.

EXTRACTS

to circa 1750.*

ABERDEEN CITY ; CHURCH OF ST. NICHOLAS.*

13th Feb. 1574. The bannis of marriage betwix Thomas Schaynd and Nans Reid was thryss lauchfully proclaimit by me, Walter Cullen, reder, and na impediment shawin nor funden for ye time; the saidis partis marrit in Aberdeen by Mr. John Craig, minister,† the xiii. day of Februar, the zeir of God 1574 zeirs.

This couple had a family: Patrick, baptized 4th April, 1574, Maister Patrick Ruderfurd and others, witnesses; David, 1st March, 1575, Andro Chalmers, David Anderson, and Isobell Pantin, witnesses; Elspet, 6th February, 1577, Elspatt Lindesay, Nans Riderfurd, witnesses; Alexander,

* We need not say that the defective state of our Parochial Records has often been the subject of just animadversion. Of the three great events in the Etat Civil of the population—Marriages, Births, and Deaths—many even of the higher and educated classes were not recorded; and even in the same family the names of some of the children were registered and others altogether omitted. Besides, many of the vols. of the Registers are amissing. See, with respect to the Registers we are now about to refer to, the regrets of the industrious Kennedy in his useful work, The Annals of Aberdeen, i. 186.

In his Book of Bon-accord, p. 134, Dr. Joseph Robertson complains that, while the birth of a sister of Jamesone, the eminent painter, was duly entered in the Parochial Registers, he had searched in vain for any notice of the birth of the painter himself. So too with regard to the surname which is the subject of these notices, the birth of Wm. Shand of Craig's Brother John (of Rotterdam) does not appear in the Register; nor indeed does that of his eldest son and heir, the year of whose birth, however, we can infer from the old tombstone.

† Originally of the Order of Dominicans. His father fell at Flodden. He was coadjutor of John Knox for nine years, and is said to have been the author of the first National Covenant. He was the second Protestant minister of Aberdeen, having succeeded Adam Heriot, originally an Augustinian Friar, who was the first.

23 April, 1580, Alexander Rutherford, Andro Menzies, Neil Chalmers, witnesses; Margaret, 19 Sept. 1583, Patrick Hunter, Marione Menzies, Marione Reid, witnesses; Jonett, 17th March, 1585, Wm. Lowrence, Thomas Donaldson, Bessie Senzior, Jonett Mar, witnesses.

6th Feb. 1574. Alexander Schaynd and Janet Still were married.

They had a family: Thomas, baptized, 30 March, 1578, be Mr. John Craig, minister, gotten in marriage, Thomas Kayth, (Keith) Thomas Schaynd, Elspaitt Finlindere, witnesses to the sayme; Alexander, 23 July, 1580; Janett, 15 April, 1582, Alexr. Ruderford, Wm. Hay, Margaret Davidsoun, witnesses; Margaret, 19 Sept. 1583, Patrick Hunter, Marione Menzies, Marione Reid, witnesses; Marione, 13 June, 1585, Donald Schaynd, Marione Mydilton, and others, witnesses; Margaret, 11 May, 1589, Wm. Mar, Alexr. King, Margaret Bruce, Jonett Eddie, witnesses; Isobel, 19 Augt. 1590, Thomas Dugat, Walter Mefin, (Methven) Isobel Cullen, Jonett Chalmer, witnesses.

Several entries belonging to this early period will be found on subsequent pages. It has been found difficult to arrange chronologically.

11th Feb. 1583. Donald Schaynd and Christiane Dyke were married.

They had children: Marione, baptized 20 May, 1585, Wm. Lowrence, Thomas Schaynd, Malcome Cullen, Marione Reid, witnesses; Meilt, (Matilda) 3 March, 1587, George Straqahan, Robert Watson, Jonet Mar, Marione Johnstoun, witnesses; Mabe, 27 Sept. 1590, Walter Cheyne, Barbara Will, and others, witnesses.

From these three couples many of the Shands of Aberdeen are descended, and some of their descendants can trace their descent, step by step, to our own times. It is probable that the said Thomas, Alexander and Donald Shand were not only cotemporaries but nearly related to each other, and from the witnesses present on such family occasions as christenings, it appears that they were on terms of friendship and intimacy among themselves, as well as with the Reids, Mars, Cullens, Menzies, Rutherfords, Chalmers, Lindsays, Edies, and other well-known names of what honest Spalding has called "the auld blud of the toun."

As the registers in question had been established only a few years before this period, they can give us no information as to what nowadays would be called the "antecedents" of those worthy citizens of Bon-Accord.

It is not probable that their progenitors had been long established in the town; at least the name Schand is not found in the earliest lists of the Burghers in the end of the fourteenth and beginning of the fifteenth centuries. They were certainly connected with the district of the county where we find the surname chiefly seated (see infra), and there seems little doubt that they themselves, or their immediate ancestors, had come to the town from that quarter.

19th Feb. 1615. Donald Shand and Euphame Ross were married by Mr. James Ross.

31st May, 1630. Davie Schand and Elspet Grigorie were married.

They had a child baptized, 28 Aug., 1632, Thomas: Thomas Nicolson, lait Baillie, Mr. Wm. Moore, Thos. Donaldsone, Mr. Wm. Blackha, George Leslie, Wm. Russell, Godfathers.

19th Dec. 1641. Wm. Schand and Isobel Howison mariet.

They had the following children: 17 Oct. 1642, Alexander; 14 Sept. 1648, Marjorie, Mr. James Reide, Alex. Ramsey, George Cruickshank, John Burnet, Godfathers. 15 Oct. 1649, Janet; John Hay laite Bailzie, Thomas Melville, David Sinkler, Robert Sincheller, Jas. Smith, younger, John Farquhar, Godfatheris. 16th May, 1652, Alexander; Alexr. Lumsden, Baillie, Alex. Anno 1702, June 23rd. Compeared George Shand, in the parish of Fraserburgh, and Margaret Gordon, in this parish, and contracted marriage according to order; they consigned pledges for their civil behaviour. Gilbert Noble, in Aberdeen, cautioner for the man, Walter Gordon there for the woman: married 21st July.

This George Shand was subsequently Dr. George Shand of Fraserburgh, who resided there with his wife, Margaret Gordon, for many years. They were the ancestors of the late Revd. James Shand of Marykirk, and his brother,

Mr. Alexr. Shand of Tanfield, Advocate in Aberdeen. Dr. Shand seems to have been in a good position, and in the local documents of the time appears next after the Baron Baillie of the Burgh. He and his spouse had a Charter from Lord Saltoun, dated 30 May, 1719, with a right to fuel, mosses, &c. It appears from the entry of the marriage in the family Bible (4to. London, 1613), which Margt. Gordon brought with her, as all the previous entries are of Gordons, that the marriage ceremony in the Cathedral, 21 July, 1702, was performed by "Mr. Thomson of Cocklaw." He was the incumbent of Old Machar at the time, and proprietor of the lands of Cocklaw in the parish of Peterhead. George Shand's father, William Shand, was of the Aberdeen Shands (Bendach or Craig), and various books with his autograph and other papers are still in the possession of his descendants, but from the defective state of the records, and indeed destruction of many of them, as is well known, by fire, and premature death of some members of the family, few particulars concerning him have been preserved. Fraserburgh, at the period in question, appears to have had the attractions of a rising place, and the Shands of Aberdeen for many years had been extensively connected in business with that part of the county. Wm. Shand of Craig had advanced large sums of money on Wadset to the Superior, to which it appears from the Public Records that his widow, "Isobell Howison, relict of the late Wm. Shand, (Craig) Mercht. Burgess of Aberdeen, and Christian Shand, her daughter," came to have right. These Shand "Wadsets" were not altogether extinct for many years thereafter, for we find some of them conveyed by John Fraser to Alexr. Shand on the 7th Feb. 1740, who afterwards, viz., on 18th June, 1762, transferred them to Chas. Fraser for the benefit of, and as in trust for, the debtors. At the time in question some of the Shands lived in Old Aberdeen, where they had considerable property,* [Retours, Oct. 22, 1697]; and George Shand appears to have returned to that parish for his wife, Margaret Gordon, who resided there. The progenitors of Margt. Gordon were "Waltere Gordon" and "Marit Ines" (Marjorie Innes), who were married in the parish church of St. Nicholas, Aberdeen, on 22nd Nov. 1646, while of the earlier generation was "Georg Gordon at ye Millne of Cromlet" (Old Meldrum), whose marriage to Christian Lindsay took place also in St. Nicholas' church, Aberdeen, on 20 Sept. 1618. This George Gordon was a well-known man in his day. He often figures, particularly from about 1640 to 1660, as a suitor in the Sheriff Court in litigation with Gordon of Auchluchries, Wm. Lumsden, Advocate, Lumsden of Pitbello, and other persons, and was on the Jury that served "Mr. Andrew Forbes, heir of his immediate younger brother, Patrick, son of the deceased William Forbes, Bishop of Edinr.," at Aberdeen, on the 16th April, 1656. To which branch of the Gordons this George belonged has not been ascertained. From the names in the Family Bible, mentioned before, corresponding

* At a subsequent period we find them living in the Gallowgate, a favourite part of the town in those days, especially on the west side, with its fine gardens sloping down to the Loch, with posterns opening to the country. In the end of last century the Rev. Mr. Shand lived in the Upper Kirkgate in his own house, situated in the Court just above Drum's Lane, now occupied by Messrs. Farquhar and Gill. His wife was a daughter of Baillie Alexr. Farquhar of Kintore, by his wife Elizabeth Harvey, a lineal descendant of Jas. Harvey of Kilmundy, and Margaret Baird of Auchmeddan, who were married at Banff on 1 Dec. 1618. Of Mr. Shand's family the only survivors are Sir Chas. Farquhar Shand, Chief Justice, Mauritius, and the Rev. George Shand, M.A., Oxon., Rector of Heydon, Norfolk. Mr. Alexr. Shand resided in a Court at the top of Broad Street, between the Gallowgate and the Upper Kirkgate. His wife was a sister of the late Robt. Harvey of Braco (father of Professor Alexr. Harvey) of the same family as the above-mentioned Elizabeth Harvey. Of Mr. Alexr. Shand's family two members alone survive.

with those of the children of Wm. Gordon, the last Roman Catholic Bishop of Aberdeen, by Janet Knowles, some of whom settled in Old Aberdeen, including, in more than one generation, the name "Walter," very rare among the Gordons, it has been thought that George Gordon was of that descent, but this is uncertain.—See Appendix.

These were the progenitors of the Shands of the Burn and Arnhall, in Kincardineshire, (supra p. 3) now represented, we believe, by Mr. Alexr. Innes Shand, of the Scotch Bar, a gentleman of well-known culture and literary ability. He is the son of the late Wm. Shand, Esq., by his wife, a lady of one of the Aberdeenshire families of Innes. These Shands of Garmouth went originally from Banff, and are of the same stock as the Shands there.

There are various other entries of births.

DEATHS.

Janet Shand, relict of Richard Winchester, Garmouth, dyed on Munday, Feb. 24th, 1729, aged about 77 years, and was buried on Wednesday thereafter, one gravis length eastward of the south-east corner of the church of Essil.

7th April, 1729. John Shand, junior, Feuar in Garmouth, brother to the above Janet Shand, aged about 74 years, died on Saturday, April 19th, 1729, and was buried on Wednesday thereafter. He lies in the fourth grave in breadth from the south-east corner of the church, under a pillared gravestone, which lies south of another pillared gravestone belonging to the Shands.

There are entries of a number of other deaths.

Sutherland son to my Lord Duffus; Christian Dumbre, servant to my Lady Duffus.

POLL BOOK OF ABERDEENSHIRE

Of 1696.

The entries in these volumes are pretty numerous: allowing moderately for children not named, about one hundred persons of the name of Shand were probably in the county at the date when the lists were made up. The following selections are made:—

Parish of Premnay.

V. I., p. 243. Mr. John Shand, Minister, paid £3. 6s., Jean Panton, his spouse, 6s., Mr. Jas. Shand, his sone, and Mary and Janet Shands, his daughters, 18s.

Parish of Culsamond.

P. 263. Margaret Shand, Tenent in Meickle Ledinghame.

Parish of Aberdour.

II. 74. William Shand, tenent in Mill of Auchmedden, and his wife and James and Anna Shands, his children, paid £1. 14s.

II. 81. Rosehartie; William Shand, Merchant ther, whose free stock is 500 marks, paid £2. 16s., Beatrix Keith, his Wife, 6s. 2d.

Parish of Cruden.

P. 122. Samuel Hutchison, tennent in Croft of Craighead, and Barbra Shand, his spouse, paid 14s.

Parish of Udnie.

P. 178. Mill of Cairnfechell. James Metland, Gentleman,* paid £3. 6s., Isobel Shand, his wife, and Wm. Metland, his son, paid 12s.

Parish of Fyvie.

V. I., p. 278. "Milne of Tifty." William Smith, Elder, Gentleman, indweller there, and Helen Black, his spouse, their general poll is £3. 12s. William Smith, younger, £3. 6s. Agnes Shand, his spous, 6s. 6d. At page 277 both the Smiths are stated to be tenants in Milne of Fyvie, and gentlemen.†

* Of this tax of 1696 every kind of property, profession and trade, had to bear a share. Rank apart from property was taxed, and any one who was or had the ambition to style himself "Gentleman" had to pay for that honor nearly as high a proportion of the tax as if he was possessed of land having a valued rent of £200. He could, however, escape the imposition by renouncing any pretence to be a gentleman, which renunciation was to be recorded in the Herald Register, gratis. It would appear, however, that few availed themselves of this privilege in Aberdeenshire.—Editor's Preface to Poll Book, p. xi.

† These Smiths were probably of the family of Smith of Blairduff or Inveramsay, in the same district of the county, and Lairds of ancient standing. It is well known that at this period a great number of the younger sons of the gentry in Aberdeenshire (and no doubt it was the same elsewhere) betook themselves to farming, any kind of employment on the continent being difficult to be had, and the colonies of England not yet open to them. When we consider the position of the Smiths, we are less surprised at the fate of their luckless daughter Agnes or "Annie," of the old Ballad. Andrew Lammie, the Trumpeter of the neighbouring Castle of Fyvie, was not reckoned a suitable son-in-law. Such differences of opinion in the same family are as common now as they were in those times, though not often, it is to be hoped, attended with such tragical consequences.

P. 296. "Munkshill." John Shand, yeaman, tennent ther, (in trade) paid £1. 2s. 8d. Margaret Wood, his spouse, 6s.

Parish of Turriff.

P. 344. Wm. Shand, tennent in Corsbinie (Corsebrae) and his wife, of general poll 12s.

APPENDIX.

Ecclesiastics of the name noticed in the Text.

PRE-REFORMATION PERIOD.

“Johannes de Campo,” Prebendary of Turriff in the Cathedral of Aberdeen. We find this ecclesiastic subscribing a deed, as mentioned, p. 10, within the quire of the Cathedral, 20th Dec., 1454; “Ego Johannes de Campo, Prebendarius de Torreff consentio et subscribo” to a grant of a piece of land to the “capellanus” of Westhall, by the Bishop Ingeramas (Ingraham Lindsay.)

“Robertus Schand, Vicarius de Potary.”—P. 11.

“Robertus Schawnd, Vicarius de Cowle.”—P. 11.

“Robertus Schand, Rector de Alves;—Chaplain of the Altar in the church of St. Nicholas, Aberdeen.—P. 13.

POST-REFORMATION PERIOD.

For dates, &c., we are indebted to Scott's Fasti Ecclesiæ Scotticane.

John Shand, M.A., was laureated at the University and King's College, Aberdeen, 30th April, 1663; admitted to Premnay prior to 9th Oct., 1677. He gave £20 towards repairing the buildings of King's College, 13th June, 1688, and died in March, 1704, aged about 71. He married Jean Panton who survived him, and had a son, the Rev. James Shand, Minister of Kintore, and two daughters, Mary and Janet.

APPENDIX.

Alexander Shand, M.A., of King's College, Aberdeen, 21st June, 1694; ordained to Glenbucket, 10th May, 1704; removed to Inch in 1708; and died in 1719, aged about 45.

James Shand, son of Mr. John Shand, Minister of Premnay, ordained 29th March, 1709, to Kemnay; removed to Kintore, 1718; died 1726, in his 48th year. He married Barbara Leith, and had two sons and a daughter, George, Thomas, and Margaret.

William Shand, M.A., of Marischal College and University, 1761; ordained in 1768, as assistant to the Rev. James Howe, Minister of Newhills; presented to Lumphanan in 1772; died in 1826, in his 87th year. He married in 1770, Margaret, daughter of the preceding incumbent, and had two daughters, Rachel, who married Mr. Hugh Low, Merchant in Aberdeen, and Margaret, the wife of Harry Lamond Esq. of Pitmurchie.

John Shand, M.A., of Marischal College and University, 1771; ordained to Kemnay, 28th April, 1779; removed to Logie Dorno, now Chapel of Garioch, in 1787, and thence to Kintore in 1799; died 11th Jan. 1833, in his 79th year. He married, in 1784, Margaret, daughter of the Revd. Francis Dauney, Minister of Banchory-Ternan.

James Shand, M.A., of Marischal College and University, Aberdeen, 1777; ordained to the Greyfriars' Church, Aberdeen, 11th May, 1791; removed to Marykirk, formerly Aberluthnot, in 1805; died 5th Jan. 1837, in his 80th year.

1567. Alexander Schand, Reider, Kynnedwart.—P. 15.

1718. Mr. John Shand, Preacher.—P. 31.

APPENDIX.

In the Episcopal Church in Scotland there were, we believe, clergymen of the name in the last century at Arradoul and Fochabers.

Omitted on first page of Appendix, amongst Pre-Reformation Ecclesiastics, "Dominus Alexander Schand," p. 12.

George Shand, Lord Provost of Aberdeen, 1764—1766 and 1770—1772, of the family of the Rev. James Shand of Kintore, (supra. p. 58. and App.); died Oct., 1792. He was married to Margaret Gordon, second da. of Sir Francis Gordon of Lesmoir, by his wife, Henrietta, 2nd da. of William Frazer, second Lord Saltoun. There is a marble tablet to her memory on the east wall of the vault of the Gordons of Kinnellar, in the churchyard of Frazerburgh.

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1814 the death of Robert Shand in the north of Scotland is mentioned. He was an admirable pedestrian, and had chosen an employment entirely in accordance with his specialité, viz., that of Postrunner. In this he shewed his wisdom, for he lived till he was 86 years of age.

The Shands had at least four places of burial in connection with St. Nicholas Parish Church and Churchyard in Aberdeen; one, as we have seen, in the old Quire, now forming the East Church; another, nearly opposite the south door of the West Church, the old Nave, a short way in the grass; and two others, contiguous, on the left hand side of the centre walk, about half-way, going from Union Street to Drum's Aisle. In the Cathedral Churchyard the places of Sepulture of Families of the name are believed to be at least as numerous.

APPENDIX.

P. 2. "De Campo:" with reference to the theory that this was an early Latin form of the name, it may be noted that the ancient Border Family of Schaw were in Latin De Chatto or Shatto.

P. 21. William Blackhall in the University of Bromberrie.—See Spalding Club Ed. of The Troubles, ii., 281; and Sp. Club Miscel., v. 330.

P. 32. Defective state of parochial records; to give another instance—Gilbert Hervie, the well-known citizen, and Baron of Elrick and Monycabbock (New Machar), who was heavily fined by General Middleton in 1640, for his Royalist proclivities (See Spalding's Troubles and Book of Bon-Accord), was married to a lady named "Annas" or "Annie Lawson," an old and leading surname of the town. They had a family of sons and daughters, several of whom are duly recorded in the register of births, but three of the four daughters, who ultimately succeeded to their father's property, on the death of their only brother (Thomas) who survived his father, do not appear in that record. Yet Gilbert was not only one of the "Sessioners" (Members of the Kirk Session) but he was "Collector for the Kirk Session," and with Mr. Walter Menzies was a "Searcher for idle people on the Lord's Day." These two Searchers had special seats provided for them in the church.—Records of Burgh of Aberdeen, Sp. Club, 1643—1747, p. 80. Gilbert Hervie was commonly designated "elder," to distinguish him from another member of the same family, Gilbert Hervie younger, who was married to a lady named "Jeine Petrie," and had a family.

There can, we believe, be no doubt that Kennedy is right when he says "the register (of marriages, baptisms, and burials) was kept with some degree of method and apparent correctness till the year 1592; but after this period, we have to remark that the same accuracy and attention have not been observed in bringing forward a record of so much importance, both in a public and private point of view." The registers of births (baptisms) from 1623 to 1631, are missing. It is but right to state that the other children of Gilbert Hervie may have been inscribed in them, and it must not be forgotten that the times latterly were very "troublous," and specially so for Aberdeen.

P. 40. Margaret Jameson, wife of Thomas Schand, may have been a sister of the Painter or connected with his family. His parents, Andrew Jameson and Marjorie Anderson, were married in August, 1585, and their daughter Elizabeth, the only one of their children whose birth is recorded, was born in July, 1586.—Book of Bon-Accord, p. 134.

P. 50. Dr. Joseph Robertson, in his admirable Book of Bon-Accord, thus refers to the unfortunate conflagration:—"All the ancient records of the Commissary or Consistorial Court perished by a lamentable fire on the 30th October, 1721. Legislative enactments (8th Geo. I., cap. 27, and 9th Geo. I., cap. 25) in some measure provided for the injuries which the loss might occasion to the legal rights of parties; but, alas! what can supply the more grievous hurt which the gentle lovers of antiquity sustained in the destruction of a treasure so inestimable, so rich in illustrations of genealogy, ecclesiastical history, biography, old manners, forgotten usages, and scandal—fascinating scandal—delightful although obsolete, and only then innocent."—P. 303.

APPENDIX.

P. 52. George Gordon. From the names of the witnesses and godfathers at the family christenings, it is more probable that George Gordon was of the Birsemore Gordons, who, like the elder family of the same branch, the Gordons of Cluny, often resided in Old Aberdeen. The first Laird of Cluny (they were subsequently Baronets) was Alexander Gordon, third son of Alexander, third Earl of Huntly.

P. 61. "James Shand and Hellen Leslie were married on the 8th Feby., 1709 yeares, being Tuesday, in the House of Memsie, at 9 o'clock in the morning, be Mr. James Anderson, Minaster at Rathan. Hellen Leslie dyed the 16th day of January, 1716, and was interred in the Church of Aberdour."—Family Bible (printed 1683) of the Shands of Craiggellie.

Pp. 20, 63 and 73. In the churchyard of Banff (near Hossack's monument) is a very old tombstone with the inscription in raised characters:—"Heir lyes William Schand in Barnehill. Isbel Lame," (Isabella Lamb.)—See supra p. 20, 1641 and 1644. These may have been the parents of Wm. Shand, Auchmedden, Aberdour.—Supra p. 73. They were certainly of the same family.

William Shand, Gentleman of the Horse to the Earl of Dundonald, was, in 1716, admitted a Burgess of Guild of Glasgow.—Craiggellie Papers. He was probably of the Auchmedden Shands.

P. 74. "Tiftie's Bonnie Annie." In some editions of the Ballad, Wm. Smith, the father of the hapless damsel, is described as "Farmer and Miller of Mill of Tiftie."

APPENDIX.

This apparently is meant to shew that, looking to his own position in life, he was quite unreasonable in rejecting the suit of the gallant Trumpeter. But without venturing to entertain so delicate a question, far less to decide it, there would appear to be more than one mistake involved here. In the first place, the farmer, Wm. Smith, was not himself the miller. That office was held by a servant, "Gilbert Pratt."—Poll Book of Aberdeenshire. In the next place, at the period in question, half of the best farms in Aberdeenshire, apart from crofts (and a "Mill-Toun" was proverbially a highly advantageous possession) were in the hands of the sons and near connections of the gentry.

The name "Pratt," often spelt "Prott," is one of the old surnames of the district. It has produced some eminent men, among whom no one who is acquainted with his charming book, "Buchan," the history of his native district, will fail to rank the late Rev. Dr. J. B. Pratt, Episcopal clergyman of Cruden.

P. 9. Provost Gilbert Menzies' Secretary:—The immediately preceding Provost, Thomas Menzies, had for his "servand," "Maister Johne Fulisurd, sumtyme ane quhitt freir in Aberdene," who "departitt" 20th May, 1576.—Book of Bon-Accord, p. 45.
